News | The tdAcademy project enters its second funding phase

On June 1, 2023, the second funding phase of the research project tdAcademy, funded by the BMBF, has started. Over the past two years, the tdAcademy has successfully built a dynamic platform for transdisciplinary research and community networking and will add new offerings to this. Research will continue to focus on four topic lines: societal impacts (TU Berlin/ZTG), scientific impacts (ISOE), contextual dependencies for transdisciplinary research (KIT/ITAS, formerly Leuphana University), and new integrative research formats (Öko Institut e.V.). In the second funding phase, the project partners will jointly address the

Report | Second international tdAcademy Summer School | organised by ZTG and UPC
The second international tdAcademy Summer School took place in 2023 and, once again, found positive resonance. From 17th to 22nd September 19 Master and PhD students with very different disciplinary and geographic background came together in Bad Freienwalde to get to know transdisciplinary methods and to apply them in an exemplary way to questions in rural areas of north-eastern Brandenburg. For all participants, this was an exciting and enriching continuation of the Summer School cooperation between the tdAcademy team at the ZTG and the ISST of the Universitat Politècnica de Catalunya (UPC). See also the report on their website.

Report | First trinational tdacademy Summer School | organised by Öko-Institut and EUCOR
The first trinational tdAcademy Summer School took place from 25.09. to 29.09.2023 at the Studienhaus Wiesneck (Buchenbach, close to Freiburg), conceptualized and organized by the tdAcademy team at Öko-Institut in cooperation with EUCOR and the University of Freiburg. 20 Master and PhD students from 20 disciplines from the trinational EUCOR region spent five days intensively working on formats and methods of transdisciplinary research using the example of urban climate adaptation. The participants applied their theoretical findings directly to the development of possible transdisciplinary research designs in the city of Emmendingen and discussed them with representatives of the city.

Let’s talk about it: Transdiziplinarität & Co-Production

Event | 16 October | Let’s talk about

Report | tdAcademy fellows
Transdisziplinarität und Co-Production

"Let's talk about it" is an German-speaking informal discussion series supporting the exchange of research at the interfaces between science and society. This time we welcome Regina Rhodius (Öko Institut e.V.), who will share with us her long-standing experience and research in and about transdisciplinary processes. Together with her, we will talk about the current consultation process of the Federal Ministry of Economy and Climate Protection (BMWK) on the "Reallabor law". We would also like to discuss together which normative direction the law should take in terms of content and what the community expects from the future legal framework.

workshop: Narratives of change in transdisciplinary projects

At a workshop held in Berlin in July, the tdAcademy fellowgroup "Fostering inclusivity and transformative research through narratives in transdisciplinary processes" Paula Maria Bögel, Universität Vechta; Karoline Augenstein, Bergische Universität Wuppertal; Meike Levin-Keitel, TU Dortmund) discussed its insights with 14 people from academia and practice. Inspired by an impulse lecture by Christiane Langrock-Kögel and her collaborative project of the journal LAND, the participants shared their experiences and delved into the particular role that specific narratives of change can play in promoting transformative action.
